1 Most time preparing for this class was spent re-watching or finishing the lecture recordings to complete my own notes, watching the recordings of the in-class reviews to better understand the content, and reviewing the textbook briefly.

I found it quite difficult to absorb all of the content for this class then be able to fully conceptualize it for the problem sets. This may be because the course was very rigorous since it compressed 5 months of learning into 4 weeks of content and 1 week of review. The textbook was hardly utilized within the class, so it was up to the students to figure out which parts of the textbook were a necessary reference. It was also difficult to understand what content was included and what was excluded besides assuming that based on what was not discussed in the in-class review sessions.

It was a bit difficult to engage with the content during the class time because there was very little time to properly digest the lecture recording content then move on directly into practice questions. Maybe having posted the lecture recordings a day earlier or a bit in advance would have been helpful to allow students who require extra time to understand the content the extra time they need to review it before doing practice questions. We were encouraged to work in groups as well, which was quite helpful but for those who could only meet on Zoom and not in person was a bit hard to communicate properly when working out the assigned problem.s

1 The professor was very good. She explained all the material very well. She always explained things in multiple ways which was very helpful. I thought the class was very interesting. It was harder to learn in the face-paced environment of the summer session. But the professor was very accomodating and made it easier. She was always open to meet outside of class and had multiple office hours.

2 Overall the instructor was incredibly accommodating and understanding. She did understand the rigorousness of the class and its demands and tried to work with us accordingly, especially providing additional office hours upon request. The course was generally just a difficult one to navigate because of the extreme time crunch but her accommodations were very helpful. The course structure is what made it difficult to navigate the course and truly comprehend the content, despite the professor's best efforts.

3 I found the review of the lectures and in-class practice problems most helpful, while the recorded lectures were much less engaging. However, changing the class schedule in the 4th week prevented us from reviewing that week's concepts before the problem set was due. While I found the class difficult, I think this mostly resulted from the fact that we had only 5 weeks of online classes to learn challenging concepts.
